About

This Bachelor's degree in Multimedia Art aims to train professionals with flexible and interdisciplinary skills capable of exploring and using multimedia technologies and environments. The training balances practical experimentation, critical thinking, and technical mastery in the main multimedia media and supports such as photography, video, sound, film, installation, performance, and interactive systems, also including analog technologies. With a cross-disciplinary approach to the arts, it encourages the development of artistic and investigative projects that cross visual, sound, performative, and spatial languages. The curriculum includes elective units from the 3rd semester onwards and an optional curricular internship in the final year, reinforcing the link to the job market. Graduates will be prepared to work in the creative and cultural industries, integrate into the contemporary art circuit, or pursue Master's studies, standing out for their ability to combine art, technology, and innovation.
